

MILLSTONE MONTHLY

A SECOND CHANCE ON SECOND STREET

ENRICH

Sometimes, the most meaningful stories begin with simply seeing a need—and deciding you can't look away. For Dan and India Kirstein, that moment came when they saw the growing impact of addiction in Madison County. Dan, a local police officer, and India, a former therapeutic foster care regional director, had spent their careers witnessing the struggles families and individuals face. They felt called to do something different—not just to address addiction, but to help people rebuild their lives.

In 2020, the Kirstein's founded Enrich, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit with a simple but powerful purpose: to bring families, community organizations and governmental partners together to find the most effective ways to serve the community. Their vision was built around three things: structured housing, employment and community. What started as a desire to help has grown into something much bigger. In 2023, Enrich purchased the historic building at 110 S. Second Street, a property that has been part of Richmond's story for more than a century. Built in 1915, the building has worn many hats over the years—from a Ford Garage and Wood's Motor Company to Andy's Pizza Palace and, most famously, the Cherry Pit nightclub.

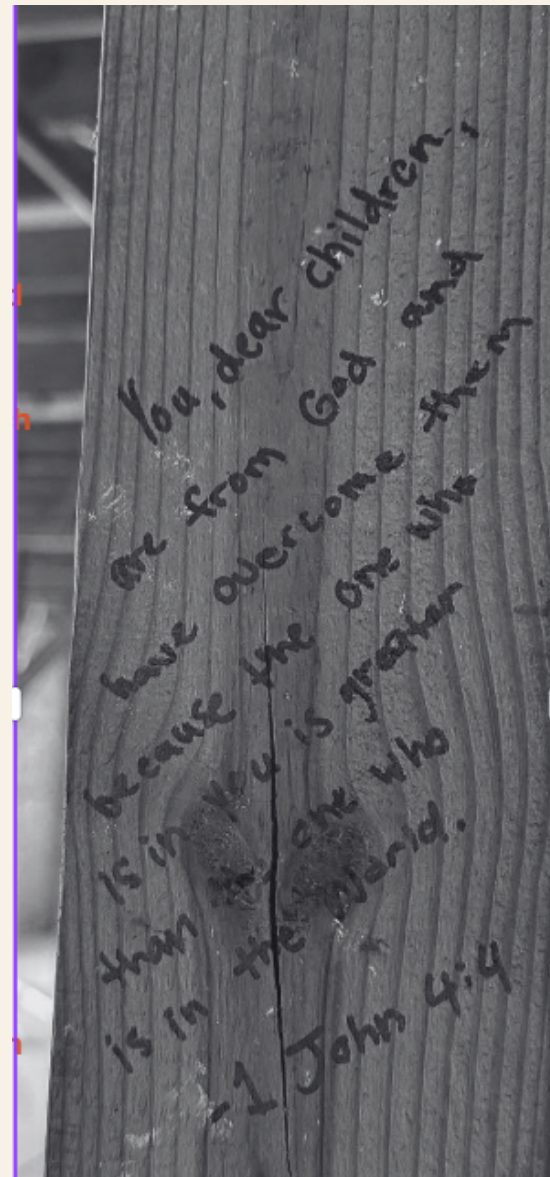

Today, the next chapter is being written. With the support of the Kirstein family, community partners and a $100,000 matching contribution from the City of Richmond, Enrich raised enough funding to purchase the historic property. The renovation is expected to exceed $1.5 million when complete, but the transformation is about much more than bricks, mortar and construction. It is about giving people another chance. In October 2023, Enrich was awarded a $595,213 grant, followed by another $411,218 in funding in 2025, these grants were awarded from the KY Opioid Abatement Commission. In 2024, the organization formally announced the creation of the Madison County One-Stop Resource and Referral Hub, located at 409 N. Third Street, bringing resources and support together under one roof for individuals and families who need a helping hand.

And the helping hands don't stop there. With over 204 community and faith-based partners, the Second Street project continues to take shape. When complete, the building will feature a large event space capable of hosting approximately 300 people. It will be used for church services, community gatherings and special events, while also being available for private rental to help generate ongoing operational funding for the building. Plans also include a made-from-scratch restaurant and kitchen, complete with windows designed to open and create an inviting, open-air atmosphere for diners. But perhaps the most important ingredient in the kitchen won't be on the menu. It will be opportunity. The restaurant is being designed as a second-chance employer, providing meaningful employment opportunities for people in active addiction recovery—people who may be ready to work, but who often struggle to find an employer willing to give them a chance. At Enrich, employment isn't simply a paycheck. It is part of recovery, dignity and belonging.

Today, Enrich has grown to a staff of 14 who operate the One-Stop Resource and Referral Hub and community event space while overseeing the renovations at 110 S. Second Street. The staff brings an extraordinary combination of professional experience and lived experience to their work, including master's degrees, pastoral backgrounds, military service, social work, law enforcement experience and more than 25 years of cumulative sobriety. But perhaps what matters most is their compassion and their belief that people are capable of change.

Enrich's Board of Directors reflects that same philosophy. The volunteer board includes individuals with master's and doctoral-level education, mental health professionals, social workers, business owners, engineers, law enforcement officers, retired professionals and individuals who have personally experienced jail and federal prison. Collectively, the board represents decades of continuous sobriety and a wealth of professional and lived experience.

INDIA & DAN KIRSTEIN

They aren't simply advisors—they are people who understand that recovery is not a straight line and that sometimes, a second chance can change everything. What began with Dan and India asking, "What can we do?" has become an entire community of people working together to answer that question every day.

The historic building on Second Street is being restored, but so much more is happening inside its walls. A historic property is becoming a place of opportunity. And a community is coming together to remind people that their past does not have to determine their future. At Enrich, the goal isn't simply to help people recover. It's to help them rediscover their purpose, reconnect with their community and build a life worth moving toward. Small Business Saturday

Small Business Saturday is a wonderful opportunity to showcase everything our downtown has to offer, we want to make it bigger, more engaging, and more impactful than ever!

This year, we are planning a downtown-wide Millstone Market to celebrate Small Business Saturday on November 28.

We encourage you to consider inviting a guest vendor, local maker, artist, entrepreneur, or small business to set up at your location for the day. Bringing additional vendors into the district will create more activity, introduce shoppers to new faces and offerings, and give visitors even more reasons to explore downtown.

If hosting a guest vendor is not the right fit for your location, there are plenty of other ways to participate. Consider offering a special promotion, hosting an activity, featuring a unique product or service, or creating another experience that welcomes visitors and encourages them to shop local. Let's work together to make the Small Business Saturday Millstone Market a true celebration of Richmond's local businesses, makers, artists, and entrepreneurs. Whether you host a guest vendor or offer something special of your own, we would love for you to be part of this exciting day.

To help us promote the event, please send me a brief description of what you will be offering and the names of any guest vendors you plan to host. We want to help promote your location, highlight your guest vendors, and showcase the exciting activities taking place throughout downtown.

Thank you for helping make downtown Richmond a vibrant destination to shop, dine, explore, and connect.

Let's make Small Business Saturday – November 28 – our biggest one yet!
